

ABOUT THE BOOK

UYAI is an Art Therapy Activity book for use by pediatricians and caregivers for children aged (0-6 years). It targets the Sensory, cognitive, psychomotor and Social and emotional development of children through the use of Sensory art and other art Activities, with the aim of making them meet their developmental milestones while having fun. The book is a project funded by IREX and The US Department of State.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Hannah Bassey is a graduate of Visuals Art and Technology with a Masters in Fine and Applied Arts. A 2019 Washington Fellow and Founder of NanaArts Initiative with 14 years experience in the Arts. She has been involved in many art related projects particularly with children, she has worked with the Federal Neuropsychiatric hospital Calabar, conducted art therapy sessions in the pediatric ward of the University of Calabar teaching hospital, orphanage of the Ministry of Social Welfare and Humanities, infant Jesus orphanage of the Catholic Church and the special education schools Calabar. She is a writer, Poet, Spoken word Artist and singer.

Kayode Malomo is a multimedia Artist based in York, Pennsylvania, USA. He is the Creative Director of Malomysart Collection. A graduate of Temple University, Kayode currently serves as a Board Member of Creative York where he works to inspire creativity particularly among youths and the community. Kayode's work incorporates themes that oscillate around a game play of light and shadow, expressing strong versatility in acrylic, oil, airbrushing, collage, and mixed media. Bright colors painstakingly weave together in themes which depict happiness, hope, beauty, and the importance of education.

Funded By:

